

Andy Goldsworthy

Willow Class have been studying Andy Goldsworthy who is an environmental sculptor.

Andy only uses natural materials, and loves to use circular shapes in his work.

He photographs his work over time to record how it changes with the natural world.

Willow Class did some outdoor natural sculptures inspired by him in the wooded area and on the field.

The children had to work hard to balance the materials without anything to fix them.

We used the ground and the field, and some of us worked hard to incorporate trees, stumps and branches just like Andy Goldsworthy!

Even Cyril got involved!
